The Roman Fare.

The Roman soldiers, who built such wonderful roads and carried a weight of armor and baggage, lived on coarse brown bread and sour wine. They were temperate in diet and regular and constant in exercise. The Spanish peasant works every day and dances half the night, yet eats only black bread, onion and water lemon.

Comfort for the Last Ride.

The horse is painted a silver color and has platform springs, making it a particularly easy-riding machine.—Las Vegas (N. M.) Optic.

Red Tape Citadel.

"Circumlocution office" is a description used by the great novelist, Charles Dickens, in his book, "Little Dorrit," to ridicule official delays and indifference. It is described as the chief of "public departments in the art of perceiving how not to do it." The name has come into popular use as a synonym for governmental routine, "red tape," procrastination and delay in transacting public business.

History Repeats Itself.

Briggs and Fowler were talking of the great wars fought in the days when the world was considerably younger. "You know," said Briggs "it always seems to me that those old warriors were very much like our modern financiers." "What do you mean?" asked Fowler. "Well they were always investing some one else's capital, weren't they?"
